The Complete Peerage of England Scotland Ireland Great Britain and The United Kingdom. (Six Volume Set - Complete).

First Microprint Edition; Super Royal 8vo; all volumes uniformly bound in green cloth, title labels on spine, titles lettered in gilt on labels, each volume with its original silk page marker, the set is housed in its original cloth slipcase, fine set. Gloucester; Alan Sutton; 1982.

The Complete peerage was first published in eight volumes between 1887-98. This was effectively replaced by 'a new edition, revised and much enlarged' and edited between 1910 and 1959, appearing in twelve volumes with volume twelve being issued in two parts. Volume thirteen was issued in 1940, not as part of the alphabetical sequence, but as a supplement covering creations between 1907 and 1938. It is this 'new edition' which is here reprinted photographically in reduced format enabling the complete work to be published as a conveniently sized, six volume set. Click here to Order

Sydney; Allen & Unwin; 2011.

With details of land-management strategies from around Australia, 'The Biggest Estate on Earth' rewrites the history of this continent, with huge implications for us today, Once Aboriginal people were no longer able to tend their country, it became overgrown and vulnerable to the hugely damaging bushfires we now experience. And what we think of as virgin bush in a national park is nothing of the kind.' Click here to Order

"The Journal has several claims for attention: it is a rare British account of whaling activities in the South Seas, a field much dominated by the preponderance of American journals; it provides an interesting eyewitness account of the death of the great circumnavigator Captain James Cook R.N. recalled by a group of elderly Hawaiians; it records the discoveries of Phoenix Island and Canton Island, the last pieces of the jigsaw for the record of 19th century discoveries; and finally, and most importantly, the Journal throws new light on the opening up of the Pacific to missionary activity, to European settlement and to commercial exploration." The settlement was commanded by Lieutenant Governor David Collins, who arrived on the warship H.M.S Calcutta in October 1803 with some 300 male convicts, a party of Royal Marines, civil official and settlers. Knopwood's diary of the period from Collin's landing until his departure for Van Diemen's Land in January 1804, is one of the few surviving accounts of settlement. It records attempts by the settlers to find fresh water, the exploration of the bay; the escape of convicts, the mutinous mood of the marines' armed clashes between the colonists and the local Aborigines, and many details of daily life in the camp. Thomas West of Barcom Glen. His Life and Times and Family.

First Edition; Demy 8vo; pp. xiii, 234; colour frontispiece, 32 pages of b/w illustrations, bound in original blue cloth, title lettered in gilt on spine, dustjacket, fine copy.

Bowral, NSW; Barcom Press; 1982.

Thomas West was transported to New South Wales in 1801. As a carpenter and millwright he gained the approval of Governor Macquarie to build what proved to be the first successful watermill in Sydney. The book is a well-researched family history which deals not only with details of the family and the tragic estrangement between the father and elder son but portrays the convict experience, the bitterness of the struggle between emancipists and exclusivists, and life in early 19th century Sydney.
